THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1886.

The Hon. "Tom" Read, Congressman from Maine, has not escaped the ordeal of being nominated—by a newspaper—as the Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1888. As a matter of course, he was subsequently obliged to submit to an interview on this subject, and with charming candor he said: "I'm running for the Presidency upon a broad and comprehensive platform. If I don't get the nomination, it won't be because I'm not willing to give satisfaction to people of all colors, races, religious and political views. After having somewhat in detail declared his elastic attitude on a large range of subjects, he further desires to say: 'If I have omitted to declare my position on any interest representing a considerable number of votes, it shall be my earnest endeavor to amend or enlarge my platform accordingly. The motto on my escutcheon is, 'I strive to please.'" In conclusion, he aims to merit the approbation and secure the support of the Republicans, Democrats and Mugwumps, and modestly expresses a preference that his nomination and election should be made unanimous. From all of which one is led to infer that Congressman Read is a good deal of a wag, as well as a delightfully frank Presidential candidate.

The New York Herald's Washington special says: Of the 4,000 places Cleveland has filled in less than one year, between 1,600 and 1,900 were men of his own choice. About 1,200 of these appointments were to fill vacancies by death, resignation or expiration of terms. Of the remainder, 600 or 900 in number, he suspended the officers before the expiration of the four-year terms and appointed men of his own selection in their places.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, has had many heavy afflictions, but has borne them so bravely that he is to-day regarded as one of the brightest and cheeriest men in the Upper House, and one of the most popular. It is remarked that he makes a friend of every new acquaintance, and never makes of any one an enemy.

John B. Gough's estate is estimated at less than $75,000. He leaves a house and two hundred acres of valuable land, six miles from Worcester. His library is valued at $2,000. His personal property will yield his widow an income of $2,000.

James Winters, a well-known young man, was found dead in bed at Reading, Pennsylvania, Tuesday. He had committed suicide by fastening a rubber hose to the gas burner, firmly fixing the other end in his mouth and then turning the gas on.

Secretary Whitney says if his connection with the Broadway-street railway case is in any respect open to just criticism he is not aware of it. At the present time the Secretary is entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

The people of Northern Idaho are not certain that they want to be annexed to Washington Territory. They think maybe it will be a long time between drinks.

It is reported that the country is to have a new navy. It will not make any material difference whether it is new or old as long as we get a navy.

Secretary Manning declares to the House that he has used his utmost efforts to get silver into circulation. Ahem!

Mrs. Phelps and the Queen will soon be gossiping cronies. A good start was made at that private audience.

Pillsbury and Chase will now have time to study for the Civil Service examinations.

The Fitz-John Porter bill will be favorably reported from the Senate Committee.

SENATOR MITCHELL'S ADDRESS.

Claims of the Pacific Coast for Protection Against Chinese Immigration Abridged.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—In the Senate, to-day, Senator Mitchell, in speaking of the Chinese evil, said the people of the whole Pacific Coast were to-day suffering from the presence of large numbers of an unclean, non-assimilating and pagan race. Impending over them and gradually extending eastward, the cloud of the Chinese evil imperiled labor, prosperity and peace, even life also. To eradicate the scourge heroic treatment would be necessary and a more decided and aggressive governmental step than had yet been taken would be necessary. Means of relief could not properly be availed of while preserving existing treaty stipulations with the Chinese Government, neither could we expect within any reasonable time to secure relief by further negotiations with that Government. Hence it was that the bill submitted by him proposed that the States and the people of this republic, through Congress and the Executive, or by two-thirds of the vote of Congress without the approval of the Executive, should remove the obstructions by first wiping out of existence all treaties which recognize the coming of Chinese to the United States, and then absolutely proscribing their coming, except consular and diplomatic officials. Senator Mitchell argued at length to show that the United States has power to abrogate by an Act of Congress a treaty with a foreign nation, and that the magnitude of the evil to be relieved justified the step proposed. He read a number of newspaper articles to show that the recent anti-Chinese disturbances in the West were not the work of the irresponsible or hoodlum element. They were the voice of honest labor, the wail of indignant toil struggling for life in an unequal contest with servile labor. The Burlingame Treaty, he said, was valueless to the United States, and this point the speaker enlarged upon in detail, quoting statistics of our commerce with China in support of his contention. Senator Mitchell in conclusion said: "This bill, unlike our Restriction Acts and proposed Acts, is not elastic—it is absolutely iron-clad. It leaves nothing to construction; it is conclusive. It is not open to the objection of being liable to having its validity sapped or its efficiency destroyed by departmental or judicial decisions. No delicate questions as to the conflict between the Act and the treaty are left open for construction or determination by either court or department. The conflict that is waged on the subject of the Asiatic occupation of this country is as responsive as the conflict that resulted in the overthrow of human slavery. It is a conflict for supremacy on American soil between intelligent, enlightened and honest American labor and the cheap and degraded labor of the lowest order of Mongolians; a conflict between morality and vice, order and anarchy; a conflict between civilization and heathenism, Christianity and paganism; a conflict between two opposing forces in all essential particulars, non-assimilating and repellant when considered in relation of one to the other, and one or the other of which must and will ultimately and necessarily be driven to the wall. Nor does it require any peculiar prescience to determine the result of the contest if the United States Government stands capably by and does nothing, or, what is but little more effective for good, simply attacks the advancing army of invaders with wooden swords and paper bullets under the pretense of conforming to our treaty stipulations and sustaining our diplomatic relations."

A Threatened Mormon Invasion.

A San Francisco Chronicle's Washington dispatch says the rigidity of the laws against polygamy and the unrelenting enforcement of these laws, has forced the problem on the Mormons of how to escape from the control of the Federal authorities. By controlling a State it is thought a solution could be found. The means of doing this would be, by an immigration into a State large enough to command a majority at the polls. Nevada is said to have been selected for this purpose, and once there with the power of making and administering the local laws, they believe their situation would be one of pre-eminent advantage.

Judge McAllister's Suspension.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—In the case of Judge McAllister, of Alaska, the Senate will probably pass a resolution calling upon the Attorney-General for information as to the authority under which the Justice of a United States Court has been suspended. Section 1,768 of the Revised Statutes says:

During any recess of the Senate the President is authorized in his discretion to suspend any civil officer appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, except judges of the courts of the United States.

President Cleveland has suspended three chief justices of the Territories and seven associate justices, which is held by the Judiciary Committee to be a direct violation of the law. The Administration will take the ground that Territorial justices are not justices of United States courts within the meaning of the statute, but the Judiciary Committee maintain that they belong as much to the Federal judiciary as justices of the Supreme Court, and that the excepting clause was placed in the statute, as the Congressional debates conclusively show to protect the judiciary of the Territories from Executive interference. If the President has the right to remove justices at pleasure, he could control the judiciary.

Justice McLean of the United States Supreme Court, in an opinion delivered in 1855, said: "The President has no more power to remove a Territorial Judge than to repeal the laws. The duties of a Judge of a Territory are discharged as independently and free from Executive control as are the duties of a Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States."

The opinion was before the Senate when the existing clause was inserted in the statute, and throughout the debate was accepted as the law. It was not contended that the President could not remove a Judge. It was admitted he had no such power. Judge McAllister will probably rely on this in his argument before the Supreme Court.

Edmunds on Cleveland.

In discussing the President's special message, on the right of the Senate to demand copies of correspondence relative to suspensions and appointments to federal offices, Tuesday, Edmunds said: I think I am safe in saying that it is the first time in the history of the Republic that any President of the United States has undertaken to interfere with the deliberations of either House of Congress on questions pending before them, otherwise than by message on the State of the Union, which the Constitution commands him to make from time to time. This message is devoted to questions before the Senate itself, in regard to a matter which it has under consideration. That is its singularity. I think it will strike reflecting people in this country as somewhat extraordinary, if in these days of reform anything at all can be thought extraordinary. The Senate of the United States, in communication to the heads of departments, not his heads of departments, but the heads of departments created by law, directs them to transmit certain official papers, and that is all. The President of the United States undertakes to change the question and consideration by the Senate for his reasons or motives for putting civil officers, as it might be called, "under arrest," by every message he has sent to this body.

A Black Eye for Dement.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Senate Committee on Public Lands has voted to report adversely the nomination of Surveyor General Dement of Utah. Dement, it will be remembered, came on here and got himself interviewed by newspaper men in regard to extensive land frauds in the Western Territories with which several persons prominent in official life were alleged to be implicated. He then denied that he had furnished the information, and when the correspondents were brought up before the Senate Committee they promptly showed that, to put it mildly, Mr. Dement's memory was badly defective. No one has any sympathy for Dement, not even the Democrats, and although he is said to be a relative of Land Commissioner Sparks his nomination will be promptly rejected.

Changes Made at the San Francisco Mint and Custom House.

The Chronicle of Sunday says: Superintendent Lawton of the Mint announced the following changes yesterday:

General Department—John Smyth, promoted from watchman to the position of porter, vice Thomas Mahoney, removed; Hans Peterson, of West Berkeley, appointed fireman, vice W. T. Fisher, removed; Henry W. Bradley, Alameda, conductor, vice B. T. Leake, transferred to the Coiners' Department; Charles W. Andrews, Oakland, janitor, vice Jackson Jordan, removed; Horace J. Jackson, Santa Cruz, watchman, vice Daniel Cram, deceased; E. H. McDaniel, of Yuba, watchman, vice John Smith, promoted.

Coiners' Department—B. T. Leake, workman, vice A. S. Hubbard, removed; Thomas F. Meagher, San Francisco, assistant clerk, vice Hugh Chalmers, removed.

Of these appointees, John Smyth, is an ex-Nevada State Senator; Henry Bradley was one of the founders of the firm of Bradley & Rulison, photographers; Horace J. Jackson was an Assemblyman from San Francisco; Thomas F. Meagher is a son of the Irish exile of that name who made such a brilliant record on the Union side during the civil war, and Charles W. Andrews is the colored steward of the Occidental Club of Oakland, and will hereafter take charge of the restaurant of the Mint.

Collector Hager made the following removals in the Weigher's Department of the Custom House yesterday, which comes within the jurisdiction of the Surveyor of the Port, and gave as a reason that there was no work for the large force employed: H. Bentheim, P. M. Belton, S. M. Clarke, Thomas Cline, C. T. Graham, E. E. Jones and C. B. Wines. All those removed were employed as temporary Assistant Weighers.

Surveyor-General Hammond announced yesterday that he would make known to-morrow the changes which he proposed to make in his office in the way of removals and appointments.

Going to Start a Paper.

Hon. W. J. Westerfield, an out and out Democrat, who has for 11 years represented in the Senate of the State of Nevada a strong Republican district, used to live in Nevada City in early days, and is still remembered by many old-timers here. It is now rumored that he is going to take a new departure and start a Democratic newspaper at Dayton, Nevada, which place has long been his home. The Senator is a "rustler" and ought to be able to make a good paper. —Transcript.

The W. J. Westerfield mentioned in the above article was once a resident of this place, and the remains of his first wife, a sister of Mrs. P. H. Butler, rest in our cemetery.—North San Juan Times.

The Pinte Chief Nachez is demonstrating what can be done by the Indians holding land in severity, by putting in forty acres to wheat on his ranch in Nevada. It is an example worth emulating in other Indians. If a given number of white men were put on a reservation and guaranteed a living it would not be long before they would become as demoralized as are the reservation Indians.—S. F. Post.

THE GUARDS INCREASE.—The Carson Tribune says: "It is very pleasing to have a local militia regiment as much respected as is the Carson Guards, and to note that they are steadily adding to their roll, solid business men and professional gentlemen, not to speak of the addition to the number of some of Carson's young men. THE STATE FAIR
Possibilities of a Fine Exhibit From Lander County

The State Fair this year must and will be a better one than the one of last year. The Austin, Nevada, is very properly urging Lander county to make a showing this year. It says:

Next October a State Fair will be held at Reno and there is now time to begin to get ready to make a display there. So far Lander county has not been represented at any of the eight State Fairs held in Nevada. Yet we have horses, cows and garden truck which will hold its own with any in the State. The writer has attended a number of State Fairs and knows whereof he speaks when he says the display of horse flesh made in Austin last Summer when we had a local "horse show" was fully equal to the best ever exhibited at Reno by anybody. They may have faster nags than we have but their first animals go the rounds of the Coast, State and District Fairs and are seen regularly every year, none can excel Lander county stock, and if General Taylor or General Lee or Schmittlein's stallion or the fine families owned by Pat Martin or James Ryan or John Spencer or George Watt or Charles Scheel or Billy Jones were to be taken to Reno next fall they would not return empty handed. Not that the premium of itself is so valuable but because it will stimulate stock raisers to renewed vigor and urge them to improve their stock and show them the practical benefits arising from cross breeding. It is a plain fact that a colt which will be worth $300 to $500 when grown will eat no more hay and require but little more care than a common one use not more $50 at any time. Blood will tell quicker and surer in animals than it will in humans and nothing stimulates the study of this so much as friendly competition.

Take our little horse display of last year for example. It was made a holiday by our people and the streets were thronged with well dressed ladies and gentlemen all of whom were delighted to see such a gathering of fine animals as had been brought together by an association taking in only three counties, one of which was not represented (Churchill) and many good horses from Northern Lander left out. The display was very creditable and it was a common remark that they did not know we had so many fine horses in Eastern Nevada. The second display was still better and if the local association holds meetings again this year—as we hope it will—a still more marked improvement will be noticeable. Friendly rivalry does it. What applies to our local "horse show" is of equal force concerning the State Fair. In fact is more forcible because of the enlarged field and scope.

The animals always give special interest to exhibits and it is placed within the reach of all to put any meritorious object in competition with its fellows from all over the State. Any information the Reveille can give anyone who wishes to exhibit at the coming Fair will be cheerfully given and we shall ask the Secretary of the Society to supply us with pamphlets and other documents about it as soon as they are printed, so that the people of this vicinity may have the fullest information concerning transportation, premiums etc. We urge in the meantime that our farmers who have horses, cattle or garden truck of especial merit to consider the benefits arising from exhibiting at the next State Fair.

A NEW FIRM.—Mr. H. Nelligan, the well known painter, paper hanger and decorator of Reno, has now with him Wm. Burk, Jr., of San Francisco, a fine painter and sign painter. The members of this new firm, being artists in their respective branches of this business, are now prepared to do anything in their line in a tasty and artistic manner. They are also agents for "Art Glass" which is adapted to church windows, side lights, vestibules, doors, bath rooms, halls and transoms, taking the place of so called frosting and paper ornamentations, which are not as durable as this new mode of preparing glass. Samples of their work can be seen at their shop, on Virginia street next door south of Odd Fellows' building, including a large window made of "Art Glass" of various shades and colors resembling a crazy quilt in shape. All are invited to call and examine this window, which shows to a better advantage when seen by daylight. They have placed the price of this work so low to come within the reach of all who desire to beautify their homes.

It is told of Representative Randall's inability of feature that a Kentuckian had tried to draw poker, remarked during the canvass for Speaker that if he had Randall's face he could sit behind two ducks and win a barrel of money.

A girl has been found in Wapping, Conn., who has been locked up by her parents twenty years because she wanted to marry against their wishes.

"May Blossom,"—is a great many have asked what kind of a play "May Blossom" is, we give the following, from the Denver Times. As the same company plays it here Saturday evening, the Times fully explains the treat in store for Reno Theater goers.

"May Blossom." It has a sentimental sound and the title is apt to prejudice intensely practical people against it. But when it is known that it is simply the name of a simple girl—a fisherman's daughter—the ground for that prejudice at once disappears. Much has been said for and against this play since its first production in New York, but its career has been a universally successful one, first in New York and then on the road. And its success is deserved. It is an emotional drama—intensely so, at times. But there is a liberal sprinkling of comedy in it, and when the easily-affected onlooker has about lost control over the tears that try hard to come to the surface at some of the pathetic points in the play the author throws in a pleasing diversion in the shape of a droll remark or situation, from one of the lighter parts drives back the tears, and brings out a hearty laugh. He does this, too, without in any way detracting from the beauty of the whole, by doing that which so few are capable of doing—bleeding humor with pathos. The story of the play is a good one—not wildly extravagant—one of its chief recommendations being its perfect purity. There is not a suggestion of immorality from beginning to end. In this respect it excels the play to which in some respects it bears a slight resemblance—"Hazel Kirke." It is a story of humble life among the fishermen—honest, whole souled, unspiced people—of a Virginia fishing village. The dialogue is good some of it really fine. The play as a whole is a strong one. This was evidently the opinion of the large and fashionable audience which last night witnessed its first representation in Denver at the opera house by Lewis Morrison and his company.

Mr. Morrison appeared in the leading part, that of Steve Harand. The character is one well calculated to show Mr. Morrison's capabilities as an actor, and the gentleman does it full justice. There are many strong situations and the temptations to run are frequent, yet Mr. Morrison never once yields. His voice, facial expression—everything, he has under perfect control. A strong recommendation, surely as strong as it is rare. What has been said of Mr. Morrison may be said with equal truth of Miss Rose Wood in her delineation of the character of May Blossom. The name is suggestive of the fresh beauty of its wearer, and Miss Wood well bears out the picture. She is a beautiful or rather, extremely pretty woman, as well as a good actress. The support is fully up to the demands of the cast, the work of E. J. Hillen, a Uncle Bud-tie the village parson, and that of F. M. Wells, as Tom Blossom, father of May, being especially deserving of commendation.

A NEW HEARING FOR CLARENCE GRAY.—Monday's Winnemucca Silver State says: District Attorney Bonfield was informed yesterday by a telegram from the Governor that the Board of Pardons at the instance of J. H. McMillan, counsel for the defendant, and upon the affidavit of Dr. Dawson, had granted a new hearing in the Gray case. The Governor requested the District Attorney to inform the Board when the State would present its side of the case. Affidavits of Sheriff Fellows and his deputies, and also of Dr. Hanson, are now being prepared to be forwarded to the Board. Sheriff Fellows will also summon a jury to inquire into Gray's mental condition, and most likely the Board of Pardons will be governed in its action by the decision of the jury.

THE OPHIR TOLL ROAD.—The Enterprise, of Wednesday, contains the annexed account of the last action of the Storey Board of Commissioners with reference to the Ophir toll road.

The matter of the Ophir grade toll road came up for action and a resolution, presented by Chairman Werrin, was passed declaring the said road from now henceforth in open public thoroughfare for the passage of vehicles and animals, free of toll. Mr. Werrin stated his grounds for the presentation of this resolution to be that P. N. Marker, the lessee of the road had refused or neglected to comply with the order of the Board in preparing and signing a proper lease.

Mr. Marker, being present, strenuously objected and protested against the passage of the resolution, and after it was passed announced his intention to prosecute the county.

A $10,000 Shortage

When Cashier Borneman was restored to his position in the United Sub Treasury in San Francisco, some weeks ago, he refused to become responsible until the cash was counted. When counted a shortage of $10,000 was discovered. The Treasury Department at Washington was immediately notified, and a special agent is now on the way to investigate the matter.

Chase and Pillsbury Rejected

The Senate Monday refused to confirm the nominations of Chase and Pillsbury to be Collectors of Internal Revenue for Maine and Massachusetts respectively. These two men were connected with the Garcelon frauds in Maine. Chase was a member of Garcelon's Council, and Pillsbury was the man on the outside who did the plotting. Both Senators Hale and Frye worked to defeat their confirmation. No votes by ayes and noes was ordered when the matter came for final decision. Many Democrats were in favor of rejecting the nominations, and there was therefore no effort to put the Senators on record. This action is not to be taken as a test case. It was distinctly understood that Chase and Pillsbury were rejected on their own demerits. The situation has not materially changed with regard to confirmation of unobjectionable Democrats who have been nominated to take the place of Republicans who have been removed, unless the contest between the Senate and the President grows more bitter than it is at present. It is said that the nominees will, after long delays, be confirmed except where grave and specific charges are brought against them.

Mr. Blaton on Carl Schurz

From his new book (second volume). He has not become rooted and grounded anywhere, has never established a home, is not identified with any community, is not interwoven with the interests of any locality or any class, has no fixed relation to Church or State, to profession, political or social life, has acquired none of that companionship and confidence which unite old neighbors in the closest ties, and give to friendship its fullest development, its most graceful attributes. The same unsteadiness has entered as a striking feature in the public career of Mr. Schurz. He boasts himself incapable of attachment to party, and in that respect radically differs from the great body of his American fellow-citizens. He cannot even comprehend that exalted sentiment of honorable aspirations in public life which holds together successive generations of men—a sentiment which, in the United States, causes the Democrats to reverence the memory of Jefferson and Jackson and Douglas, which causes his opponents to glory in the achievements of Hamilton and Clay and Lincoln—a sentiment which in England has bound the Whigs in a common faith and common glory from Walpole to Gladstone.

State Surveyor General of California

Theodore Reichert, whose name is as a household word in the ranks of the Republicans of this State will be a candidate before the convention, to be held in August next, for Surveyor-General. He should receive the nomination by acclamation, for he is entitled to it, if there is any gratitude in men and parties. He is thoroughly competent in the position in every regard, and as a Republican, he is a peer of the most loyal. His nomination would add great strength to the ticket as it would be acceptable to all classes. He is a young man, active and intelligent, and of the most honorable impulses. As a land lawyer he is without an equal, and under his control the business of the Surveyor-General's office would be conducted in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. We are glad that Mr. Reichert has consented to allow his name to be presented for the position in question. His choice would be eminently popular and satisfactory to the entire party.—Spirit of the Times.

TO THE LADIES OF RENO.—BUSINESS CHANGE.—Miss Sadie Sykes tenders her best thanks to the ladies of Reno and vicinity for the patronage and support they have given her for the past three years, and desires to inform them that she has this day disposed of her business to Miss Hessel, for whom she solicits a continuance of their kind patronage and support.

Referring to the above Mrs. Hessel respectfully solicits a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to her predecessor, and assures the ladies of Reno and vicinity that her untiring efforts will be put forth to keep the business up to its former high standard. Her knowledge of the business, combined with the services of a first-class assistant, will insure perfect satisfaction at all times.
